Under this program, customers allow EnergyAustralia to remotely control and operate their Product to help manage the variability in the power system, and to secure the electricity grid during unforeseen events and in doing so can earn credits on their electricity bill.

2. Application of this Part A

This Part A only applies where the following conditions have been met:

- (b) the Product has been installed and commissioned at the Premises in accordance with Part B of this Product Schedule; and
- (c) you have access to SMS and email necessary to receive notifications from EnergyAustralia and you consent to receiving notifications which do not include an unsubscribe facility.

| $10.00      | Payable per Demand Response Event.  |
| $20.00      | Payable per Demand Response Event where the Actual Metered Consumption during the Demand Response Event is less than the Deemed Baseline Consumption during the Demand Response Event by a margin of 10% or greater. See our explanation below as to how your Actual Metered Consumption and Deemed Baseline Consumption is calculated by us. |

|---------|--|
| $25.00 | Payable where EnergyAustralia has requested that you complete a survey, and such survey has been completed by you and returned to EnergyAustralia as required. |

Calculation of Actual Metered Consumption and Deemed Baseline Consumption

Step 1: Calculate your Actual Metered Consumption

The first step is to calculate your Actual Metered Consumption. This is the actual volume of electricity (measured in kWh) that is consumed at your Premises during the Demand Response Event. This consumption data is obtained from your type 4 or type 5 meter at the Premises.

Step 2: Calculate your Deemed Baseline Consumption

The second step is to calculate your Deemed Baseline Consumption. This is the amount of electricity (measured in kWh) that you would have consumed during that same period of time, if the Demand Response Event had not occurred. We calculate this by looking at the average consumption for the same period of time across the 10 previous Business Days (other than days where a Demand Response Event has occurred).

For example, if the Demand Response Event occurred between 12pm-4pm on a Wednesday, then we would calculate your total consumption between 12pm-4pm across those 10 previous Business Days, and divide that number by 10 to get an average consumption for each day. That average then becomes the Deemed Baseline Consumption (subject to the adjustment at Step 3 below).

Step 3: Adjust the Deemed Baseline Consumption

The third step is to adjust the Deemed Baseline Consumption to reflect the particular conditions on the day of the Demand Response Event. For example, if that Wednesday were an unusually hot day, then it is possible that you would be consuming a higher amount of electricity during that day than you ordinarily would have (for example, through additional air conditioning). We therefore need to adjust the Deemed Baseline Consumption to reflect those particular conditions.

To calculate the adjustment:

- We first define and assess a 'Morning of Adjustment' (MoA) period, being the 3 hour period beginning 4 hours prior, and ending 1 hour prior, to the Demand Response Event. In the example above, that would be from 8am to 11am on the Wednesday.
- We then look at your total consumption between that same 3 hour MoA period (ie, 8am-11am) across the 10 previous Business Days (other than days where a Demand Response Event has occurred). We divide that total number by 10 to get an average consumption per day for that 3 hour MoA period.
- That average consumption is then deducted from your consumption during the 3 hour MoA period on the day of the Demand Response Event. This results in an adjustment amount (which may be positive or negative).
- To work out the adjustment to the Deemed Baseline Calculation, we divide the adjustment amount by 3, to get an average hourly consumption. That amount is then multiplied by the number of hours comprising the Demand Response Event (in the above example, 4 hours). The resulting amount is then added to the Deemed Baseline Consumption.

We may, from time to time, develop a more detailed methodology to calculate your Deemed Baseline Consumption consistent with the principles set out in Steps 2 and 3 above, subject to any changes notified under clause 5(c)(ii) of the Terms and Conditions. Further information may be obtained by contacting EnergyAustralia at arenatrial@energyaustralia.com.au
